

If you wondered what the small plastic parts under the base of the Skyline's box are for... We call them sliders: because of the shape of the chassis, which must follow as much as possible the original car's chassis, like most saloon cars the Skyline has a tendency to tip over. These little plastic pieces help counteract such tipping tendency.

